Our Mission

The mission of the Rhode Island Community Action Association is to serve Rhode Island's network of Community Action Agencies through training, and technical assistance, public education, capacity building, and for the development of public policy to address the impact of poverty in Rhode Island.

Our Vision

We envision Rhode Island Community Action Association as a strong unified network of effective community action agencies, guided by excellence and integrity in the promotion of social and economic justice in the state of Rhode Island.

CHALLENGES TO RHODE ISLAND HOUSEHOLDS

Over a third of Rhode Islanders identify affordable food, places to live and utility bills as serious problems.

Agency case studies and focus groups, with over 100 clients per agency, cited a lack of available jobs, health problems/disability, and public transportation as reasons for an inability to meet basic needs. Generational poverty, housing cost burdens, credit card debt and delays in health and dental care cost continue to keep some individuals from moving forward.

42% of those with an unemployed adult in the household indicate that health problems/disability is the cause for unemployment. Over 70% of Rhode Islanders delay health and dental coverage because of cost.

1 out of 5 residents

Community Action Agency.

35% of Rhode Islanders have a high school degree or less. 65% of Rhode Islanders have some college, technical training or higher education. However, it's still not enough for most to attain a livable wage in Rhode Island.

Transportation is a significant barrier to accessing employment, job training, youth/teen activities, continuing education, or behavioral/mental health care for adults.

Established in 1992, Rhode Island Association of Community Action Agencies is a trade association for seven (7) Community Action Agencies serving all 39 cities and towns, providing training and technical assistance to the local community action agencies. Rhode Island Association of Community Action Agencies, along with our community partners, work on policies that serve low to moderate income families. With this survey, Rhode Island Association of Community Action Agencies aims to discover the most pressing challenges Rhode Islanders face so that the statewide network of Community Action Agencies will be better prepared to address these state challenges. The following is a breakdown of the survey respondents:

- 1,500 Rhode Islanders participated in the 2017 survey, a 15% response rate
- 500 clients, from all seven community action agencies, participated in the 2017 survey, a 10% response rate
- 75 professional stakeholders participated in the 2017 survey; 37% response rate
- 40% own their own home; 31% reported credit rating as a barrier to homeownership

Since 1965, the Blackstone Valley Community Action Program (BVCAP) has been assisting low income people and empowering them to become self-reliant and responsible citizens. BVCAP serves over 23,000 individuals. The staff of over fifty people reflects the ethnic diversity of our community, enabling us to be sensitive to our clients' culture and language, while providing the best possible support. For thousands of families, BVCAP is a safety net, providing basic necessities like food, clothing and fuel assistance during difficult times.

Tri-County's Northern Region serves over 15,000 low and moderate income Rhode Islanders annually. The majority of families served by Tri-County work full or part time jobs yet they struggle to meet daily basic needs. This is due to a variety of factors including inadequate work skills, low wage jobs, and the high cost of critical necessities such as daycare, healthcare, auto insurance, housing, and rising consumer debt. Tri-County's most recent Community Needs Assessment helps to provide a look at the type of individuals and families that rely on this Agency to help them survive in today's tough economy.

(COMMUNITY PROFESSIONAL STAKEHOLDERS SURVEY: 75 RESPONSES)

For over 50 years, RI Community Action Agencies have been committed to helping individuals and families achieve personal and economic self-sufficiency.

In 2016, RI Community Action Agencies served more than 175,000 Individuals and 88,000 Households with a variety of wrap-around health, dental, mental health, education, case management, employment and job readiness training, child care, family support, housing and supportive social services.

As a statewide network of community action agencies, we have the expertise and capacity to address a wide range of community needs with dedication, compassion and creativity.

We understand the root causes of poverty and the impact it has on children and families. We continue to be steadfast in our commitment to “helping people and changing lives” in all Rhode Island communities.

For further information about the RI Community Action Association and individual community action agencies, please go to our website at www.ricommunityaction.org

Rhode Island Association of Community Action Agencies would like to thank the thousands of Rhode Islanders who took the time to complete our survey in order to generate the data in this Community Needs Assessment Report. Further, we would like to thank the staff at the Community Action Agencies for their assistance with the development of this report.

This report was funded by the State of Rhode Island’s Community Services Block Grant Discretionary Funds. We are appreciative of Frederick Sneesby, CSBG Administrator, and the Rhode Island Department of Human Services for their generous support of this project.
